1. Create space

4. Pay attention to their questions

We are so grateful for your contribution to making the world better and engage scientists like us to learn life beyond what we've learnt. This is a moment and experience we can never forget. Thank you for supporting our community and doing what you do. More importantly, it is not just about looking at ^{exotic} creatures through a microscope. It is about how someone ever thought of doing this, just for us and many more. You have thought of others who would have wanted this opportunity to see and do this for the love of science - and - you came back better than ever. You have extended your hand of support to us. On everyone's behalf and from us thank you !! ♡ x science @

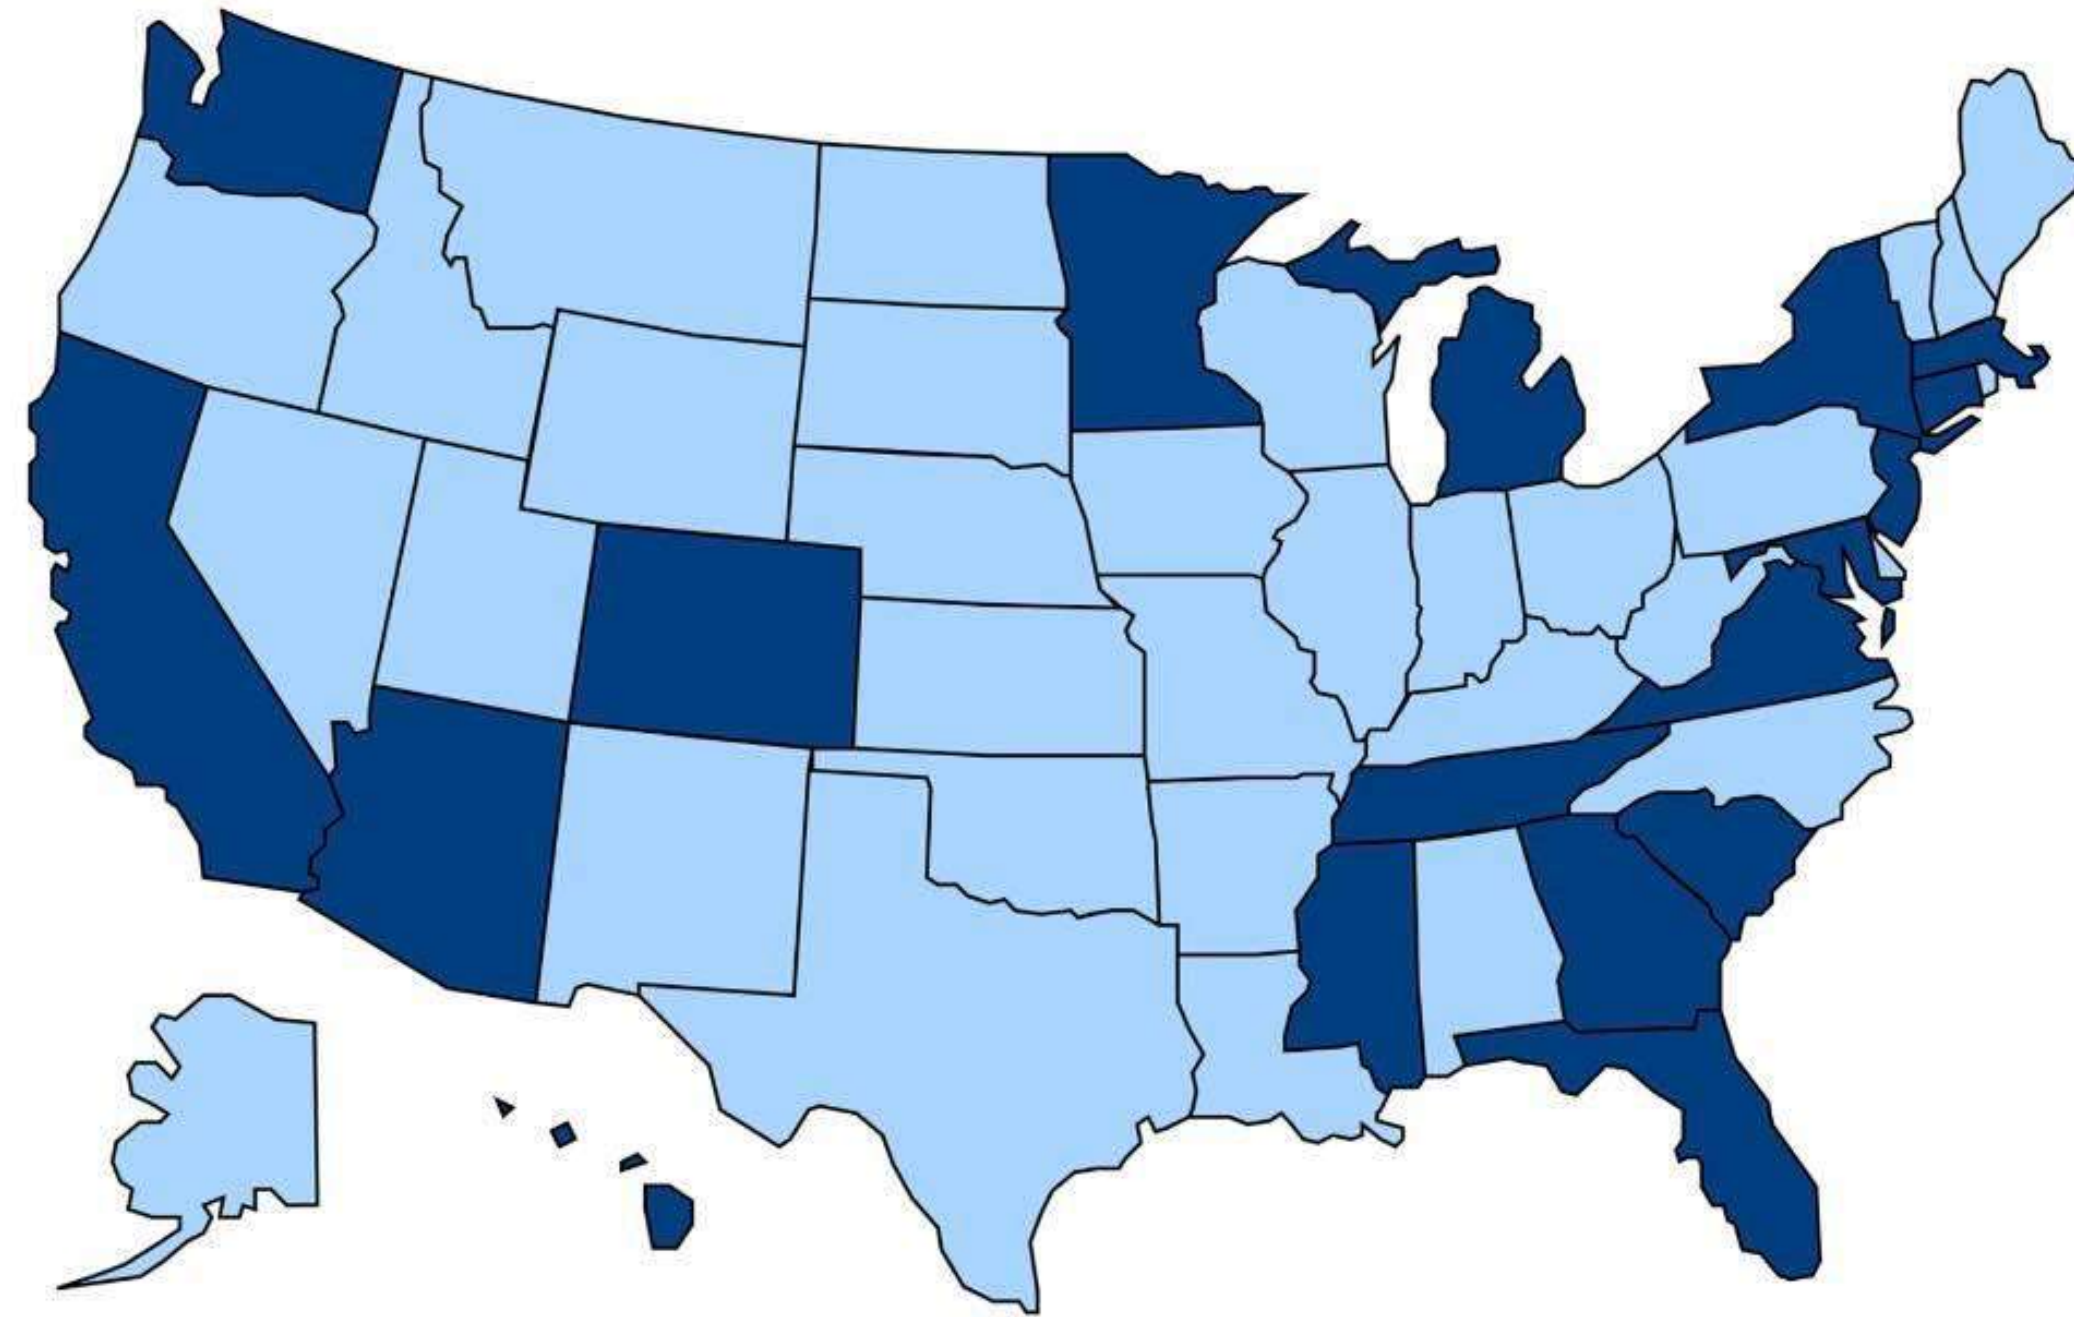

Thank you for going the Extra Mile !

5. Provide ongoing mentorship and support

6. Become part of a community of practitioners
